

Make inclusion happen

www.cid.org.au

Make inclusion happen

People with intellectual disability need to do everyday things.

This might be things like

- Getting information
- Using a service
- Using public transport

We want the NSW Government to make things easier for people with intellectual disability.

We want the NSW Government to make inclusion happen.

Inclusion means people with intellectual disability are included.

This is what we want the NSW Government to do

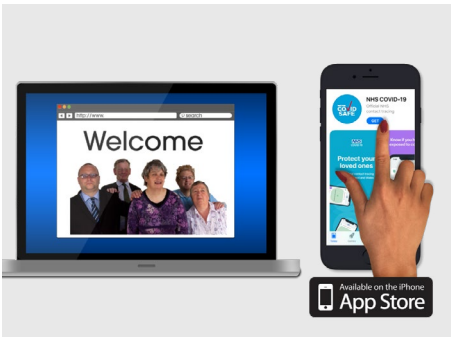

There are 4 things we want the NSW Government to do.

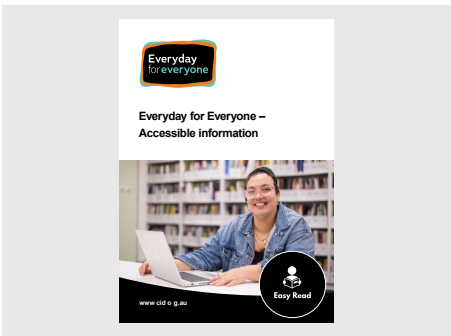

1. Accessible information and services

We want the NSW Government to have accessible information and services.

Accessible means it is easy to understand.

We want the NSW Government to make government websites and apps easy to understand and use.

To read our information sheet about accessible information go to www.cid.org.au/campaigns/everyday-for-everyone/easy-read-communications

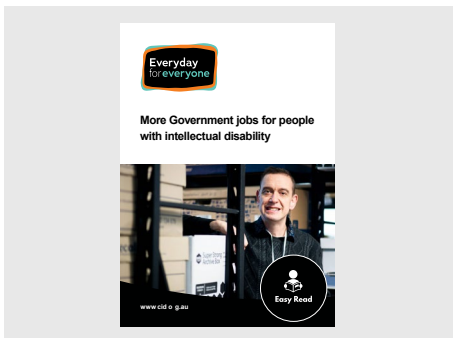

2. More Government jobs

We want the NSW Government to have more jobs in Government for people with intellectual disability.

Jobs in Government could be working for places like

- Hospitals
- Police
- Schools

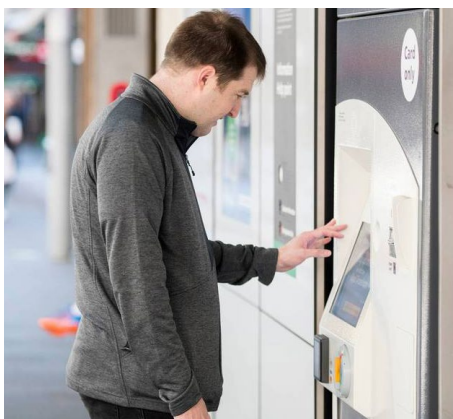

To read our information sheet about Government jobs go to www.cid.org.au/campaigns/everyday-for-everyone/easy-read-employment

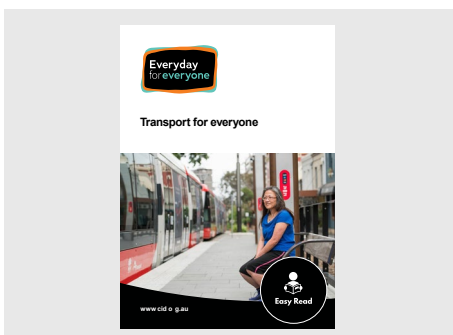

3. Better public transport

We want the NSW Government to make public transport better for people with intellectual disability.

This means things like

- Transport information that is easy to understand
- More places to buy tickets and OPAL cards
- Better support from transport staff

To read our information sheet about better public transport go to www.cid.org.au/campaigns/everyday-for-everyone/easy-read-transport

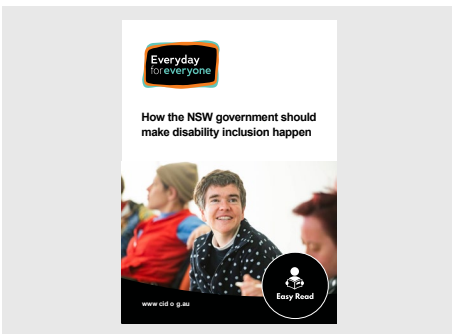

4. Make disability an important goal for the Government

We want the NSW Government to do more for people with disability.

We want them to push for big changes so that people with disability can have a better life.

To read our information sheet about what the NSW Government can do for disability inclusion go to www.cid.org.au/campaigns/everyday-for-everyone/easy-read-government

What you can do

We need the NSW Government to do better for people with intellectual disability.

We want the NSW Government to do the 4 things we ask them to do.

We need your help to get this done.

How you can help get our message across

We need the NSW Government to do better for people with intellectual disability.

We want the NSW Government to do the things we ask them to do.

We need your help to get this done.

This is what you can do to help us.

Contact the NSW Premier

The Premier is Dominic Perrottet

You can call him on (02) 8574 5000.

You can email the Premier by using the form on this page. Click here to open the page.

Contact the Leader of the Opposition.

The Opposition is the party who is not the Government.

Right now in NSW the Opposition is the Labor party.

The Leader of the Opposition is Chris Minns.

You can call him on (02) 8574 5000

You can email him on leader.opposition@parliament.nsw.gov.au

You can contact your local MP.

Your local MP speaks up for people in your area when the government makes decisions.

You can ask for a meeting with your local MP.

CID can support you to contact your local MP.

You can call us on 1800 424 065.

You can email us at advocacy@cid.org.au

What you could say

I want the government to make NSW more inclusive for people with intellectual disability.

I want the Premier to be in charge of disability inclusion.

Government information and services should be accessible.

Accessible means it is easy to understand.

Information that people with intellectual disability need in their everyday lives should be in Easy Read.

There should be more Government jobs for people with intellectual disability.

Public transport should be safe and easy to use for people with intellectual disability.

Information about public transport should be easy to understand.

Please tell us how your email or phone call went.

Please send us a copy of what you said.

Send to advocacy@cid.org.au

You can call us on 1800 424 065