

Talking about justice

Justen and Alison went to a conference.

It was about how to support people who have been in prison.

Justen talked about his experience.

He said "There were a lot of people with lived experience speaking. They were brave."

Whose life is this anyway?

Some people with disability have a guardian.

Guardians are allowed to make decisions when a person cannot make decisions for themselves.

Sometimes people do not have a say about who their guardian is.

They have a right to have a say.

They should get support to have a say.

Royal Commission accessibility

The Disability Royal Commission has a Draft Accessibility Strategy.

The Strategy is a plan to make sure people can be part of the Royal Commission if they want to.

You can tell them what you think about the strategy.

You need to tell them before Friday September 13.
