

Tell the Royal Commission about your experience of work

18 June 2020

The Disability Royal Commission wants to know about the experiences of people with disability in employment.

Employment means you

- have a job
- go to work
- get paid

The Commission wants to know

- if you have been discriminated against at work
- if employment programs work well

They want to know how to

- increase employment for people with disability
- make work better for people with disability

They have questions you can answer.

You can read the questions at www.disability.royalcommission.gov.au

You must answer the questions before August 14.

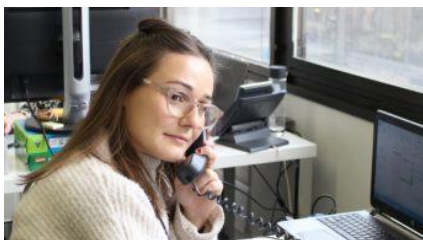

If you want to answer the questions you can call the Commission on 1800 517 199.

You may find it difficult to talk about work and discrimination.

You can get support before you talk to the commission.

To find a support service call the Commission on 1800 517 199.

If you have any questions please call us on 1800 424 065.